What is Aromatherapy?

Before we detail our aromatherapy products, we have provided you with helpful information on aromatherapy and essential oils – the foundation of our premium aromatherapy product line.

It seems that everywhere we go today, there's a department store, drugstore, or bath & body shop that is selling something called aromatherapy. But what is aromatherapy and why has it become so popular?

Aromatherapy has a lot to do with smell, and in some cases, nothing to do with smell. That's where there tends to be a lot of confusion. We feel "aromatherapy" should actually be called "essential oil" therapy. It's really all about the oils – their therapeutic action and how our body reacts to them physically, mentally, and emotionally.

What are Essential Oils?

Essential oils are everywhere in nature! Essential oils are the highly concentrated essences of aromatic plants that give flowers, fruits, spices, and herbs their scent and flavor. These oils are carefully extracted from various parts of the plant - petals, leaves, seeds, roots, and even the peels of the fruit.

Essential oils are absorbed directly into the skin, moving into the nerve endings to calm and relax the body while greatly enhancing the skin's health and functioning. The fragrances of these oils are most popularly known to reduce levels of stress, harmonize moods, and boost immune deficiencies – thus the combination of words "aroma" and "therapy." Since ancient times, essential oils have been used in healing ailments of the mind and body. Today, there has been a revival of these ancient beliefs, and many people are finding essential oils to be a natural and alternative way of restoring balance to their mind, body, and spirit.

The oils can be used in many ways--in body wash, massage oils, lotions, bath soaks, and candles to name a few.

Skincare Products

Pink Papaya's skincare line was developed to protect and enhance the skin's natural functions to help reduce the formation of wrinkles and fine lines. Our line contains both natural extracts and products developed scientifically that stimulate the skin's natural process resulting in improved complexion. Our natural ingredients include extracts such as papaya, meadowster, chamomile, watercress, yucca, white tea and meadow-sweet. Other natural ingredients we use are trehalose, crushed apricot seeds, aloe vera just to name a few. We dedicated ourselves to understanding the chemistry behind reducing the appearance of fine lines, wrinkles and other skin imperfections and couple our extracts with such ingredients as dermaxyl, collagen, haloxyl and peptides. Truly combining science and nature.

Once your party guests and clients experience our products they will agree our mix of science and nature make for excellent products!

Why do we love Papaya?

We love papaya because it contains an enzyme called papain that helps improve your skin tone three ways.

Papain leaves your skin glowing - Papain has been used for centuries as a exfoliant or as an excellent yet gentle remover of dead skin cells and environmental toxins. Dead skin cells literally stuck on your facial skin or any other skin for that matter give your skin a dull or lusterless appearance.

Papain leaves your skin supple and healthy reducing the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles - Some studies have shown that papain stimulates our skin's own biological process of skin regeneration. In simpler terms papain stimulates the circulation in our skin allowing nutrients and oxygen to reach the skin and also allowing moisturizers applied to the skin's surface to penetrate.

Papain helps with puffiness - Some studies have shown that papain stimulates the process to remove excess fluids that cause puffiness.
